RESULTS

Well done indeed to Simon Steeles as he recorded his first win with a fine 40:25. To put this in perspective it was over a minute quicker than the last winning time on this course (by Nik Allen 2 years ago). Needless to say he fooled the handicappers - so having been given the second largest handicap saw him finish streets clear in the h/c rankings.

Trevor put in a strong ride to finish second. Spencer nearly got caught out by the deceptive Welldiggers Arms turn and just managed to extricate himself from the dead end and loose gravel without coming to grief.

Martin Booker moved into first place on the SPOCO leaderboard ahead of Ian Cheesman (whose season sadly came to a premature end with him very well placed)

The main talking point of the day was the complete disappearance of Paul Townsley somewhere between Billingshurst and the Fox Hill turn. Scouting parties had no success and there was some considerable concern. Eventually Paul resurfaced, having punctured and then gone cross country in an ill-fated attempt to return to base unaided. All's well that ends well.
